TELECOM ITALIA: MARCONI AWARDED 50M EURO CONTRACTS TO FURTHER DEVELOP OPTICAL TRANSMISSION NETWORK

LONDON - May 19, 2003 - Marconi Corporation plc (London: MONI) today announces that Telecom Italia has renewed two frame contracts worth an estimated 50 million Euros (c. GBP36 million) for the supply of high capacity transmission equipment over the next two years. The agreements will ensure that Telecom Italia continues to develop its advanced network based on next generation technologies, characterized by high standards transmission speed and security. This investment supports the continued deployment of innovative broadband services to Telecom Italia's customers.

The first frame agreement, worth up to 40 million Euros (c. GBP29 million), is an extension of an existing frame contract for the supply of a wide range of Synchronous Digital Hierarchy (SDH) equipment. This latest agreement reaffirms Marconi's position as the main supplier of this technology to Telecom Italia.

The second contract is worth up to 10 million Euros (c. GBP7 million) and is related to a frame contract signed in 1999 for the implementation of a new optical transmission network for Telecom Italia based on Marconi's dense wavelength division multiplexing (DWDM) technology. This innovative technology can also operate over dispersion-shifted fibre (DSF) and allows Telecom Italia to quadruple the capacity of its already installed fibre, with the associated improvement in operating costs.

Edgar Filing: MARCONI PLC - Form 6-K

The new Marconi DWDM equipment will allow Telecom Italia to provision the bandwidth for innovative broadband services necessary to satisfy the growing demands of Telecom Italia's residential and business customers by developing a more efficient optical fibre backbone network.
