On September 23, 2011, the following communication was distributed to Constellation Power Generation employees along with answers to Frequently Asked Questions regarding the merger with Exelon. The answers to Frequently Asked Questions were previously filed with the SEC on September 22, 2011.

CPG employees,

As part of our commitment to continuing communications with you, I wanted to let you know that Human Resources has posted some key updated merger and divestiture information, which I'm also attaching to this note. The updated information includes the revised Summary Plan Description for the Constellation Energy Severance Plan and updated merger FAQs which address some of the divestiture questions which have been asked by CPG employees. New questions and answers are highlighted on the attached documents in red.

I'm passing this information along because CPG's leaders continue to be committed to keeping our employees updated on these significant issues. I know there's a lot going on right now, and the recent announcement by Exelon of the senior leadership for the new company was a reminder of that. I also know our employees are appropriately interested and engaged in all that's going on with the company, so we want to ensure you're getting the right information as it's available.

The Severance Plan revision was actually announced several weeks ago, and we discussed it at the most recent Town Hall meetings held at the Baltimore plants. As far as the revised FAQs, CPG's Divestiture Transition Committee has been passing our employee's questions on to the Integration team as we've been receiving them. Just wanted you to know we are listening and responding. You can also access both these documents through the myConstellation internal website under myHR and through the internal merger website.

Both the Severance Plan and the FAQ updates are only individual pieces related to an overall process that will play out over many months between the integration and then the divestiture of the Baltimore coal plants. I wanted to take this opportunity to not only pass this information along, but to remind you that CPG is committed to keeping you informed and updated throughout this time of change.

Beyond our regular communications, we've taken a number of steps to ensure our employees are involved and engaged. That includes the creation of the Divestiture Transition Committee and related subcommittees that are focusing their attention on communicating with Baltimore Region employees and engaging employees to maximize sale potential, and preparing to interface with potential buyers. These efforts are critical in helping us move forward and will continue for the foreseeable future.

I also want to remind you that this is an ongoing process and that we cannot yet address every question from every employee, mainly because many of the questions won't be answered until these processes are further down the road. That said, CPG is working with the Integration Team continually to address your questions and we'll continue to be committed to communicating with you whether face-to-face or through communications like this one, as updates and information become available.

In the meantime let's keep focused on our business plan and key initiatives, and as always, please watch out for one another.

Thanks, and please work safely today,

John Long
