- (iv) clarify that the Company's majority voting standard does not apply to the election of directors or different voting standards mandated by the Revised Bylaws or the New York Stock Exchange;
- (v) clarify the methods by which stockholders may revoke proxies;
- (vi) clarify that Board compensation may be paid in forms other than just cash, and that the Board or one of its committees shall fix both salary and other components of officer compensation;
- (vii) clarify the method by which Board members may resign and by which the Board may adopt conduct rules and regulations;
- (viii) establish order of business and advance notice provisions for stockholder meetings and advance notice provisions for elections of directors;

- (xii) provide the most senior officers of the Company with, in some instances, the authority to designate the location of stockholders meetings;
- (xiii) permit the use of remote communications for stockholder meetings, adjourned stockholder meetings, and Board meetings, and for notices to be delivered by overnight courier;
- (xiv) permit the Board to designate the date of the annual meeting of stockholders, rather than requiring such meeting to take place on the first Tuesday in May each year;
- (xv) permit the Board to postpone and reschedule annual and special meetings of stockholders;
- (xvi) permit the use of electronic transmissions regarding written stockholder ballots, stockholder lists, unanimous written consents of directors, and notices;
- (xvii) permit the Board to authorize the Chairman of the Board to appoint officers other than Chairman of the Board, Chief Executive Officer, President, Secretary, and Treasurer;
